Castella

The origins of the castella cake, which is a favorite of Japanese people, goes back to a confectionery introduced from Portugal.

Karakumi

One of Japan's three great delicacies, made with only mullet roe and salt. In addition to the well-known dried karakumi, there is also fresh karakumi, which can be used in pasta and other dishes.

Sara udon

Features two types of noodles, "thick" and "thin," each with a different texture and flavor.

Nagasaki oden

*Kanboko with ago soup stock* is a must! Enjoy the carefully simmered taste of Nagasaki.

Dejima bara-iro

Characterized by its rose-colored flesh, this beef is produced by its eight farms in the city.

Milkshakes

Available at a variety of locations throughout the prefecture. The refreshing sweetness and crunchy texture are irresistible!

Champon

This dish was invented by Chin Heijun to provide cheap, nutritious food for poor and hungry Chinese students who were studying in Japan. It is still loved by many people today.

White tuna rolls

Made with wild varieties of yellowtail caught in Nagasaki and available at supermarkets.

Nagasaki Sashimi Shabu-shabu

Expertly selected fresh fish, carefully chosen by skilled chefs. First, enjoy it as sashimi. Next, lightly swish it in hot broth (shabu-shabu). Then finish with a final course to complete this "three-stage" tasting experience which showcases the very best of Nagasaki's fresh seafood.

Turkish rice

Like a "kids' lunch for adults," with pilaf, cutlet, spaghetti, Nagaitan and other dishes all on one plate, this is an iconic, local gourmet dish of Nagasaki.

Ramune

Nagasaki was also the first place in Japan to produce ramune. Many different things came to Japan via Nagasaki, and finding them is one of the joys of sightseeing here.

Braised pork bun

This is a Nagasaki specialty made from slowly simmered pork cubes sandwiched between chewy manju bun dough.

Yoriyori

A spiral-shaped Chinese snack made from fried wheat flour. When it was introduced to Nagasaki, it was called "tojimaki." The local nickname for it became "yoriyori."

Night View of Nagasaki

Enjoy the romantic night view that has been named one of the world's three new greatest night views! Mt. Inasa is a popular photographic spot bustling with people coming to check out the night view.

Glover Garden

Contributed to the modernization of Japan! Get a panoramic view of the former Glover House (a World Heritage Site) and Western-style buildings, as well as Nagasaki Port, which attracted many great men.

Peace Park

A space allowing never to repeat such a tragic war and for praying for the repose of the souls of the atomic bomb victims and for lasting peace.

Meganebashi (Spectacles Bridge)

Nationally designated Important Cultural Property. One of the three most famous bridges in Japan, and one of the oldest surviving arched stone bridges. When reflected on the water, it looks like a pair of glasses ("megane").

Hashima Island (Gunkanjima)

A World Heritage Site located in the majestic sea. It was once a thriving coal mining site, and you can experience its history of prosperity and decline.

Benex Dinosaur Museum

A museum where you can see, touch and experience dinosaurs' history. The 13m long replica of a Tyrannosaurus rex skeleton is truly a sight to behold!
